WELCOME TO RICHLAND

Richland is located near the confluence of the Yakima and Columbia Rivers, the northern most point reached by the Lewis and Clark Expedition in 1805. First incorporated in 1910, Richland remained a small agricultural community until the Army acquired it and 670 square miles of adjacent land in 1943 as the site of the Hanford Engineer Works which was used to produce plutonium during World War II and the Cold War. Today, the historic B Reactor and other important historical venues are part of the new Manhattan Project National Historic Park. The city is also home to the Pacific Northwest National Laboratory and a branch campus of Washington State University.

HOP-ON HOP-OFF Highlights

THE REACH MUSEUM (THE HANFORD REACH INTERPRETIVE CENTER)

In the year 2000, President Clinton established the 196,000-acre Hanford Reach National Monument, recognizing the historical, ecological, and scientific importance of the last free-flowing section of the mighty Columbia River. Today, The REACH stands as a gateway to the National Monument and a unique gathering place celebrating the stories of the Columbia River basin and its people. Using indoor and outdoor exhibits, The REACH teaches many stories of this interesting region. Learn the history and culture of this interesting river town through personal accounts and artifacts highlighting how the top-secret Manhattan Project transformed the mid-Columbia region during World War II. Discover how engineers at the Hanford Site raced to produce material for the nuclear weapons that ended the war, and see how Hanford’s nuclear legacy both threatens and helps protect this unique desert and river ecosystems today. Explore exhibits that display the giant lava flows and cataclysmic ice age floods that sculpted the river’s course. Spend the day exploring this 14,000-square-foot museum, enjoying the many permanent exhibits including The Land Takes Form, The Living Land, and Manhattan Project at Hanford: 1942-1947, Digital Planets, and more. Outdoor exhibits include Community Garden, Native Plant Communities, Columbia Center Rotary Outdoor eater, and Animals of The REACH Interpretive Trail!

SACAJAWEA STATE PARK

Sacajawea State Park is a 284-acre day-use park operated by the state of Washington and located at the confluence of the Snake and Columbia Rivers where Lewis and Clark arrived on October 16, 1805. An excellent interpretive center and museum features interactive displays that tell the story of the Lewis and Clark expedition through the experiences of Sacajawea, the young Shoshone Indian woman who accompanied the expedition. It is also the site of one of seven “confluence” installations designed by noted artist Maya Lin for the 2005 Lewis and Clark bicentennial.

FRANKLIN COUNTY HISTORICAL SOCIETY AND MUSEUM

Built in 1911 as a Carnegie Library, the Franklin County Historical Museum is a non-profit organization dedicated to saving Franklin County’s unique history. Learn about the county’s rich agricultural history, and the role of the Northern Pacific Railroad in founding the city of Pasco, and an extensive collection of historic photographs and artifacts. The high ceilings and dark wood trim create an authentic period atmosphere for this collection of historic artifacts and information. A new library was built in 1962, after which the building served several different business concerns, ending in a period of abandonment and neglect. In 1980 the library made the decision to convert themselves into a museum to help preserve the history of their town. Between 1980 and 1982, the building was beautifully refurbished by volunteers.

PASCO FARMERS MARKET

Established in 1988, the Pasco Farmers Market is located in the heart of downtown Pasco, Washington. From May to October, local vendors and businesses sell farm-fresh produce, hand-crafted products, prepared food, and beverages every Saturday from 8:00 AM - Noon. The market is also a place to celebrate the diversity of the local communities through live music, entertainment, and events. Expect to find fresh, locally-grown produce, beef, poultry, eggs, plants and flowers, honey, wine, bread, pastries, cookies, kettle corn, espresso, hand-crafted goods and more – all under covered pavilions for shopping in any weather!

Premium EXCURSION OPTIONS

WINE AND SPIRITS ON RED MOUNTAIN

Embark on a journey through the Red Mountain Viti-culture Area. Generally recognized as one of the North-west’s best suited to grow wine grapes, we’ll lead you on a tour through the progression of the area with some samplings of the wines borne from their fruits along the way. Discover the history of the Red Mountain area and how the Pacific Northwest region became famous for its wine production. Then, we’ll visit Hedges Family Es-tate and Winery before continuing on to Black Heron Spirits.

HIGHLY CLASSIFIED: BEHIND THE GATES OF THE HANFORD B-REACTOR

Today, join us for an EXCLUSIVE experience as we travel behind the gates of the infamous B Reactor Na-tional Historic Landmark at the Hanford Site. An expe-rience that has never been permitted before and has been crafted specifically for American Empress guests. Our journey will begin as we arrive at the Hanford REACH Museum, where we will enjoy an “official” boxed lunch, much like the one thousand workers would receive at the site each day. As we eat, our guide will share some background about the Manhattan Project at Hanford. After exploring the exhibits and displays in the museum, we will make our way to the Hanford Site and B Reactor
